Local government land use decisions affect economic development and quality of life. They can also create major challenges to efforts by property owners to develop and use their property, as well as to residents as they cope with growth and change.

This Annual Land Use Institute program is designed for attorneys, professional planners, and government officials involved in land use planning, zoning, permitting, property development, conservation and environmental protection, and related litigation. It not only addresses and analyzes the state-of-the-art efforts by government to manage land use and development, but also presents the key issues faced by property owners and developers in obtaining necessary governmental approvals. In addition, the entire approach of the program is to provide practice pointers that give immediate “take home value” by focusing on topics relevant to the average practice of the attendee.

This outstanding program features:

- Preeminent faculty of practitioners and academics who provide nationwide perspective without losing sight of state specific issues;
- Critical review and analysis of the most important new decisions;
- Practice-oriented discussion of basics and “hot” topics;
- Guidance on routine and complex procedural issues; and
- Outstanding networking opportunities, including continental breakfast, breaks and a joint reception for registrants and faculty with participants in the ABA Section of State and Local Government Law Spring Meeting.

This course is an investment in your practice, in your career, in your ability to get out ahead of the competition in serving your clients, and in the appreciation and intellectual satisfaction you can get only from having knowledge of land use at the cutting edge.

What You Will Learn

This course of study, eligible for up to 12 hours of CLE instruction, including 2 hours of Ethics, is designed to provide an effective and efficient review of current issues in land use for attorneys, planners, public officials, developers, and academics. Now in its 33rd year, the Land Use Institute has earned its role as one of the most comprehensive land use continuing education program available.

The Land Use Institute is now sponsored by the ABA's Section of State & Local Government Law. Co-sponsors include: the University of Baltimore School of Law; American Bar Association Section of Civil Rights and Social Justice; American Bar Association Section of Real Property, Trusts & Estates; American Bar Association Forum on Affordable Housing and Community Development Law; Inversecondemnation.com, the Property, Regulatory Takings, Eminent Domain, and Land Use Blog.

The schedule of the presentations and panels of the Land Use Institute has been designed to accommodate the program of the Section of State and Local Government Law Spring Meeting, facilitating the ability to travel between venues to attend desired sessions at each location.

Special features of the 2019 Land Use Institute include:

The year's course begins with a Thursday afternoon panel discussion of recent court decisions, providing a common foundation for all registrants to build a better understanding of the current state of land use law. Among the subject areas where cases will be addressed (subject to change) are:

Affordable Housing; Climate Change; Comprehensive Planning; Distressed Properties; Eminent Domain; Exactions; Historic Preservation; Impact Fees; Moratoria; Religious Land Use, Short-Term Rentals; Takings; Variances; Vested Rights and Wetlands.

Annual Richard F. Babcock Faculty Address

The Friday morning session begins with the Annual Richard F. Babcock Faculty Address. Richard F. Babcock was one of the twentieth century's greatest land use attorneys, and the first Chair of the predecessor to the Land Use Institute. In his honor, each year a selected faculty member presents a major address on a topic of substantial current interest. Faculty member Dennis W. Archer, former Mayor of Detroit and former President of the ABA, will present this year's Address, "Detroit's New GM Plant from Mayor Coleman Young to Mayor Michael Duggan."

Federal Laws, Regulations, and Programs Affecting Local Land Use Decision-Making

The federal government continues to encroach upon local government decision-making through a variety of policies and programs. This Friday morning session presents major current issues as they relate to environmental protection and real estate development at the local level, including the roll-back of regulations in selected programs. Among the topics to be discussed in detail (subject to change) are:

Climate Change/Sea Level Rise, Endangered Species, Hazardous Materials, Historic Preservation, Housing, Hydraulic Fracturing, NEPA, Religious Land Use, Opportunity Zones, Water and Wetlands.

Hot Topic Concurrent Sessions

In response to registrants' requests for the opportunity to examine current issues in greater detail, Friday afternoon there are two sets of concurrent sessions and a plenary final session to provide a detailed analysis covering both "hot" topics and traditional critical practice areas. Faculty members summarize their prepared materials, overview key aspects of the topic, and provide ample time for participants' questions. Topics this year (subject to change) include:

Concurrent Session One

Nuts and Bolts of Land Use Practice:

Bringing and Defending a Takings Case

The Latest Urban Redevelopment Incentive: Opportunity Zones/Opportunity Funds

Update on Form Based Codes

Concurrent Session Two

Nuts and Bolts of Land Use Practice:

Building Regional Approaches to Housing and Revitalization in Baltimore

This final plenary session is jointly sponsored with the ABA Forum on Affordable Housing and Community Development Law. This panel includes leaders from the Housing Authority of Baltimore City, the State of Maryland, and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. The panel discussion will cover initiatives and challenges to implementing regional and multi-dimensional approaches at the local, state and Federal levels to revitalize Baltimore's neighborhoods. As in communities across the United States, in the face of decades of neighborhood disinvestment, questions to be addressed include: what regional strategies are available to move residents to communities of opportunity while also rebuilding areas that are lagging behind? What legal tools are available in this overall effort and what Fair Housing and other legal parameters impact how projects are conceived and the funding sources that are made available to them?

Additional Details

Time is set aside throughout the program for faculty interaction and to address written questions submitted by the registrants, both in advance of and during the program. Continuing the tradition of expanded networking opportunities, there will be morning and afternoon breaks, a Thursday reception for registrants and faculty following the Program (held jointly with the ABA Section of State and Local Government Law Meeting participants and other co-sponsor organizations), and a Friday continental breakfast, a Friday Women in the Law Luncheon Session and a Young Practitioners Luncheon Session. After the Program ends on Friday, through the ABA Section of State and Local Government Law, there will be an optional ticketed tour of and dinner at the Reginald F. Lewis Museum of Maryland African American History & Culture.
